1 last name.

2 A. My name is Kevin A. Ryan, R Y A N. I reside at 127
3 Commonwealth Avenue, Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts.

4 * DIRECT EXAMINATION

5 BY MR. BROWN:

6 Q. Dr. Ryan, what is your present occupation?

7 A. I'm a Professor of Education at Boston University.

8 Q. And what are -- just in very general terms, now, what are
9 your responsibilities at Boston University?

10 A. I am a Professor of Education and I teach graduate course
11 and supervise dissertations. But I'm there primarily now to 12 work on on a project to help a Portugese Minister of Educatio
13 develop a teacher-training faculty system.

14 Q. Could you describe briefly your formal academic backgroun

15 A. I have a B.A. from the University of Toronto in Psycholog
16 and English. I have a Master's Degree from Columbia
17 University Teachers College in the teaching of English; and a
18 Ph.D. in education from Stanford University.

19 Q. Could you describe your first professional experience, or 20 identify your first professional experience in education?

21 A. I was a teacher of language arts in a high school in New 22 York State.

23 Q. Did you know what you were teaching?

24 A. Yes.

25 Q. And where did you go from there?

1 Q. After leaving Ohio University, what did you do next?

2 A. I had just left Ohio State University last August 9th.

3 Q. And you mentioned -- and that's when you went to BU?

4 A. That's right. Yes.

5 Q. And you started off by talking about that the major reason
6 you went to BU was to be a program coordinator with respect to 7 the program in Portugal. Could you describe what it is you're 8 doing?

9 A. Well, the Portugese nation had a social revolution in 1974,
10 and at that time they decided that their educational system
11 was very inadequate, that it was not democratic, that the 12 mandatory compulsory age of education was only to the fourth
13 grade, and they mandated a system of education not unlike the 14 United States in terms of compulsory education up to grade 12
15 and an elementary-high school division.

16 The country was very interested in this. They also 17 wanted to be part of the European economic community. But,
18 unfortunately, Portugal was a poor country, and the World Bank
19 said to them, you will not be admitted into the European
20 economic community until you get in place a modern school
21 system. And they have come through with a good deal of 22 financial support for that.

23 An important part of that is the development of a
24 teacher training infrastructure. Now, what that means is that 25 Portugal, which has, as of right now, a very small and very

1 sort of casual teacher education method, is establishing 12
2 regional teacher education institutions at the university
3 level positions; and they looked to the rest of the world for
4 help on this, and they put out a request for proposals. A
5 number of the European universities, University of Paris, and 6 some British universities, Swedish universities, put in
7 proposals; but Boston University, theirs was chosen. They 8 were chosen to train the faculties of these 12 new 9 institutions.

10 And having -- I was invited a year-and-a-half ago by 11 the President of Boston University to review what Boston
12 University was doing, and --

13 Q. Why were you asked to do that?

14 A. I had -- three years earlier, I had been a Fulbright
15 Senior Scholar in Portugal, working with the Minister of 16 Education and at the University of Lisbon, and I knew a little 17 bit about teacher education in Portugal. And that was the 18 reason that I was invited to be a consultant on Boston
19 University's proposed project. And out of that, I was invited
20 to come and organize the program.

21 Q. Now, when the proposal was first made, or when you first
22 became aware of the proposal, was it contemplated that Boston
23 University might do all the training of Portugese teachers
24 themselves?

25 A. I think that's true. There was a general sense that

1 Boston University would use their regular faculty to do that.

2 Q. And did you make a recommendation concerning that part of 3 the program?

4 A. Yes, I did. My feeling is that in this particular project
5 the stakes are enormously high. The 120 people who are
6 currently right now being selected for these roles in these 12
7 institutions are going to be there for 20 or 30 years; so that
8 the course that they have on teaching or supervision is going
9 to set an intellectual and training agenda for them for a
10 number of years. They are going to go on and train all these 11 teachers with what they learned.

12 So I wanted to be assured that wherever possible we 13 have the very best people. And we're right now trying to 14 contact people from the national and possibly international
15 education community to be involved in the program. I think
16 there's going to be a large number of people from BU, but
17 wherever we can, we're going to try to get the very best
18 people from other places.

19 Q. So you are not process right now of recruiting the best
20 that you know of to participate in this program?

21 A. Yes.

22 Q. And do you have any responsibility with respect to the 23 curriculum that will be used in the program to develop a
24 teacher training instruction?

25 A. Well, the Portugese did a lot of study on their own, and

1 they looked at various curricula for teacher education. First
2 in France. They're very oriented towards France. And then
3 Britain, and a number of the other European countries, and the 4 United States.

5 And I think one of the reasons they selected
6 Boston University was because the curriculum that they wanted
7 taught seems to be one like an American teacher education
8 curriculum. And we have their indication of what courses they 9 want, and the sequence. And we -- and this happened before I
10 was there -- we went with our course outlines and, in a sense,
11 negotiated with them to a mutual satisfaction about what the 12 content of what the various courses would be.

13 However, it is still very general, and a lot will 14 depend on how a particular professor teaches a particular
15 course.

16 Q. Going on to another subject, do you belong to any
17 professional associations?

18 A. Yes, I do.

19 Q. Could you describe significant ones for us?

20 A. I am a member of the American Educational Research
21 Association; I am a member of Phi Delta Kappan; I am a member
22 of the Network of Educational Excellence; I am a member -- I
23 was a member of the Master of Arts in Teaching Association --
24 in fact, I was President, before it -- before -- I think it's 25 defunct now. And I think there might be one or two other ones.
